The Inland Area Writing Project is a member of the California Writing Project (CWP) and the National Writing Project (NWP). It is a university-based organization with a history of more than thirty-six years of success. It comprises a network of reflective practitioners who are dedicated to professional inquiry in the pedagogy of writing instruction.

The Inland Area Writing Project is an approved No Child Left Behind (NCLB) provider. IAWP professional development can be funded with NCLB funds as well as Program Improvement, English Learners, or site professional development funds.

Our Vision

The Inland Area Writing Project shares the vision of the National Writing Project:

> Writing in its many forms is the signature means of communication in the 21st century. The NWP envisions a future where every person is an accomplished writer, engaged learner, and active participant in a digital interconnected world.

Inland Area Writing Project

University of California, Riverside

This is an overview of IAWP’s unique High School Outreach Program. This program is designed to help high schools prepare their students for college reading and writing through the lens of the statewide University of California Analytical Writing Placement Exam.
College Reading and Writing Readiness through the Analytical Writing Placement Exam

Over the past twenty-three years, the Inland Area Writing Project has successfully operated its High School Outreach Program. The goal is to help schools and instructors prepare students for various college-level forms of “on-demand” writing and the challenges of academic reading and writing.

In this program, high school juniors take a practice Analytical Writing Placement Examination, which the University of California has been using for entering freshmen since 1987. The practice exams are assessed analytically by University of California professionals who teach college-level composition courses. The evaluation culminates in a presentation to the students’ classroom, to review the results of the practice exams and to offer instruction in meeting college-level expectations for academic reading and writing.

Registration Information

Registration and scheduling begin in December 2016. Visits take place in February, March, April and May 2017.

- The cost for each visitation is $350/per class.
- Visitation includes:
  - the analytical evaluation of up to 35 papers from a single class
  - a one-hour presentation in the students’ classroom by a University of California professional
- The presentation allows students to
  - review their practice exam results
  - receive personalized feedback & ask questions
  - gain an understanding of the college-level expectations for academic reading and writing
